Executive Presence to the Power of C™

Personal presence may be difficult to define, but we all know when we see it. Someone walks into a room and heads turn. Conversation opens up to include them. Their words and opinions have positive impact. The question is, how do others perceive you? Credible? Competent? Authentic? How do you respond to someone citing data with which you're unfamiliar? How do you respond to difficult questions? How persuasive are you in selling ideas?

Dianna Booher, MA, CSP, CPAE As a Hall of Fame speaker and bestselling author of 47 books, Dianna Booher works with organizations to communicate clearly and with leaders to expand their influence by a strong personal presence. Her latest books include Communicate Like a Leader, What MORE Can I Say, and Creating Personal Presence. National media such as Good Morning America, USA Today, WSJ, Forbes, CNN, Fast Company, Bloomberg, Success, and Entrepreneur frequently interview her on critical workplace communication issues. Richtopia has named her at #54 on its 2017 list of "Top 200 Most Influential Authors in the World."

Embrace the Challenge of Change: Inspiring & Influencing Teams When it Matters Most

Change is anything but predictable and it's moving more rapidly than ever before. One of the most valuable job skills to excel at today is knowing how to change. Some changes we can control, others we can influence, and some situations we simply can't. So we must get more agile in not only adapting to change, but also embracing it. By better understanding the change process and applying key strategies, you will be able to more effectively manage reactions, increase effectiveness individually and within your team, and become a more influential change agent in unstable times.

Tracy Butz, CSP Tracy Butz is the infusion of an engaging, powerful and poignant speaker with an interactive, results-focused professional, who masterfully influences positive behavior change. As a former Director of Learning & Development, she was accountable for talent management and employee development.

The Leader as Coach: A Process to Guide Team Members Toward Positive Action

Leaders, today, need mastery at providing direction and giving clear, timely feedback on employee performance. This requires speaking clearly, concisely and objectively. We practice writing feedback and then delivering feedback in practice sessions.

In addition to providing feedback, leaders must feel comfortable helping good performers transform into excellent performers. Coaching allows the leader and "coachee" to partner together as they move from the current situation to the desired state.

Kathy Cooperman, CPC Kathy is President of KC Leadership Consulting, LLC, specializing in Leadership Development, executive coaching and facilitation. Ruthless Consistency: How to Execute Strategy, Implement Change and Drive Results

Despite high-profile launches and best intentions, most strategic change initiatives fail. As just one example, published failure rates for strategic planning range from 70-90%.

Results don't happen by chance. They happen when leaders build organizations that are systematically aligned with winning – the right environment, right focus and right team. All driven by the right commitment. In this interactive and assumption-challenging workshop, Michael will address each of the four “rights”.

Michael Canic, PhD, CSP Michael Canic has one focus in business: helping committed leaders make strategy happen. He is President of Bridgeway Leadership, a strategy + execution consulting firm with offices in Denver and Vancouver. Applying his proprietary Strategic Management System, Michael has helped hundreds of leaders across North America turn their ambitions into strategy, and strategy into reality. Clients say it's the most effective strategic process they've experienced.
